Highlands Initiative Sets Legislative Agenda

Business and governmental leaders from across the Highlands region recently met to discuss annual legislative priorities for Overton, Putnam and White counties.

Highlands consultant Dave Cooley of Cooley Public Strategies, representatives from Capitol Strategy Group and Committee Chairman Steve Copeland, Sr. led the group in a discussion that began with an overview of changes in the legislature. The dialogue continued with key accomplishments in the Highlands over the past year including the Highlands Town Hall Debate 2010 held at Tennessee Tech University in Cookeville in October and the BlueCross Bowl held in December which brought over 1,600 athletes from across the state and 25,000 visitors to the region to compete and watch the TSSAA high school football championships held at TTU's Tucker Stadium.

Other key accomplishments included grant funding for a specific building at the Upper Cumberland Regional Airport Business Park in Sparta and an infrastructure grant for an industrial site in Overton County.

Now in the second year of Phase II of the Highlands, the delegation set the following legislative goals for 2011:

Chamber's 7th Annual Chamber Membership Meeting featured NASA Astronaut Capt. Barry E. Wilmore

Celebrating a Mission of Service made for a wonderful evening at this year's 7th Annual Chamber Membership Meeting. With Tennessee Tech graduate Captain Barry E. Wilmore as the keynote speaker, fellowship and inspiration filled the room.

Wilmore shared stories of his time in the military as well as with NASA. The tale of a small-town boy achieving his dreams gave inspiration to many. The description of Wilmore's trip into space was so vivid, attendees could imagine almost every detail. Wilmore also showed spectacular photos and videos of the International Space Station and flights around the Upper Cumberland region.

A gift was presented to Wilmore, after his presentation by Tennessee Tech President Bob Bell and Chamber CEO George Halford. A beautiful glass art piece was unveiled, from The Gallery at the Appalachian Center for Craft, a satellite campus of Tennessee Tech.

Plaques were presented to Toney Hudson, Paul Korth, Tom Lawrence, Mike McCloud and David Williamson in recognition of their time of service with the Chamber as they retire from the Board.

The ceremonial 'Passing of the Gavel' commenced as outgoing Chairman Bob Luna welcomed Jim McGeehin of Flowserve as the 2011 Chairman of the Board. McGeehin commented about the bright future he envisions for the Chamber and its programs, and recognized the 2011 Board members.

Special thanks go to Bob Luna, Grade A Catering, SEC Enterprises, Budweiser, Streamliner Creative, Express Signs, Fastsigns, Vital Signs, Crossroads Wine and Spirits, Towne & Country Flowers and many others for making this year's Annual Meeting a success.

The mission of the Chamber is to be a world-class, regional leader, partner and catalyst by protecting and improving our pro-business climate; cultivating and supporting future community leaders; creating and retaining high quality, 21st Century jobs; enhancing our region's quality of life; and adding value for our members' investment.

Adopt-A-School Program Welcomes More Than 100 Active Adopters

The Cookeville-Putnam County Chamber of Commerce's Adopt-A-School program attained more than 100 active school adopters in February as Cookeville First Assembly and Shea Chiropractic PC adopted Cookeville High School and became the 100th and 101st adopters.

"We are excited for this opportunity to be more involved with the schools in our community," said Greg Canada, youth pastor at Cookeville First Assembly. "This program gives us an outlet to work directly with the schools to be even more of a supportive role in the lives of young people."

"This is a significant milestone for the Adopt-A-School Program and all of the students in our schools who benefit from more than 100 adopters throughout Putnam County," said Jim McGeehin, Chamber chairman. "It represents a strong collaborative effort among the schools and adopters that grows stronger every year."

The Adopt-A-School program was started in 1989 by the Cookeville-Putnam County Chamber of Commerce.

"This program has been instrumental in bridging the business community with the school system to impact the lives of our students. Adopters often provide financial

- 1) Develop a strategy to begin working with Governor Haslam's new administration and key new commissioners.
- 2) Develop a legislative agenda including planning a "Day on the Hill" meet and greet.
- 3) Develop a regional infrastructure and advocacy priority list.

Chamber Ambassador Team Grows to All Time High

The Cookeville-Putnam County Chamber of Commerce's Ambassador Committee has grown to an all time high, reaching 30 active and involved members.

The Ambassador team is the goodwill arm of the Chamber, committed to attending ribbon cuttings, grand openings, ground breakings, new member orientations, as well as helping with events such as Business After Hours, Business Before Hours, Annual Membership Campaign, Annual Membership Meeting, Annual Golf Tournament, and recruitment and retention of our members.

"The Ambassador team is not only strong in numbers and activity level but they are strong because of the dedication and professionalism of each member," said Phillip Baker, chair of organizational development for the Chamber. "This group really cares about the community and shows it through their countless hours of volunteer service."

The Chamber Ambassadors will be instrumental in executing the goal of the Chamber's Member Contact Plan in which, over the next 18 months, every member of the Chamber will be contacted. These visits are meant to build relationships with all members, show appreciation for their investment, and gain valuable feedback about their membership.

Chair of the Ambassador Committee, Don Viar said, "The Ambassador team is made up of individuals from many professions including banking, insurance, manufacturing, media outlets, hoteliers, computer/technology businesses, and restaurant owners. Ambassadors come from large businesses, small businesses, from corporate environments to entrepreneurs and retirees, a real cross-section that makes the team strong and relatable to our membership base on all levels."

Phillip Baker addresses the Ambassadors as the 2011 Chamber Ambassador Team met for an Ambassador Orientation at the beginning of the year. With 30 active and involved members, the Ambassador team is instrumental in helping with Chamber events and member retention.

The Ambassador Committee started this year off with an Ambassador Orientation meeting, to welcome the new ambassadors, go over responsibilities and goals, and build excitement within the group.

"This will be the best year for the Ambassador Committee because the expectations are clear," said Dianne Callahan, membership services director, "the goals defined, the activity will be tracked and the good results will be obvious at the end of this year"

For more information about the Chamber's Ambassador Committee, contact Dianne Callahan at 931-526-2211 or dcallahan@cookevillechamber.com.

All Parents Should Be Aware of New Drug in Area

Local agencies in Putnam County are teaming together in an effort to get word out to parents in the community about a dangerous drug that is sold as “plant food” and “bath salts” and can be purchased at convenience stores, smoke shops and novelty stores.

The drug is marketed as “plant food” and “bath salts.” Because it is easily purchased and the drug remains legal in the state of Tennessee, many think that it is not dangerous; however, it has caused some local teens and adults to be hospitalized in critical condition and some have experienced long-lasting effects still present after discharge from the hospital. Although many of the effects of this new drug are unknown, it is known that there is potential for long-term neurological effects including brain damage or even death.

The drug in these products is new and is called mephedrone, or 4-methyl methcathinone. Tagged as “designer drugs,” these products are sold as a household product and have “not for human consumption” listed on their packaging. The chemical make-up of these products makes them useless for the advertised purpose and has the effects similar to a combination of other illegal stimulant street drugs.

How do you know that someone is taking this drug? Persons taking these drugs may seem very happy, feel an increased sense of love/desire for intimacy as well as have a greater willingness to talk than usual. Users may appear calm and under control and then may suddenly change without warning and be easily agitated and aggressive. They have a false perception of their actions which can easily lead to doing things that may cause injury or even death. Users will typically have a very fast heart rate, large pupils in their eyes and may experience insomnia, going for prolonged periods without sleep. They may even experience “worm-like” body movements and high body temperatures. If you find yourself dealing with someone using this drug, remember that your safety is the primary concern and call 911 immediately.

Parents are encouraged to speak with their children about the dangers of this. In addition, residents are encouraged to contact their senators and representatives to show support in favor of banning these substances in the state of Tennessee.

CHC Mechanical Contractors Honors Associates for Attendance and Longevity

Garry Floeter, left, president and CEO of CHC Mechanical Contractors, presents Sherry Hamilton with an award for 30 years of service with the company.

CHC Mechanical Contractors recently honored many of its associates during a holiday breakfast.

Garry Floeter, president and CEO of CHC Mechanical, gathered all associates for the annual event in December. With associates spread out all over the region, it's the only company-wide gathering of the year. This year's event was held at the Leslie Town Centre.

Each year, Floeter delivers a "state of the company" address and employees exchange Christmas presents. Outstanding associates are recognized, including those for longevity as well as perfect attendance for the year.

"It is very important to retain employees," said Floeter. "That is why we recognize our outstanding employees of the year and those who have been with us for a number of years."

Cookeville FASTSIGNS® Open House and Ribbon Cutting

The Cookeville FASTSIGNS® center will host an open house Tuesday, April 5 from 9:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m. and will be joined by the Cookeville Area-Putnam County Chamber of Commerce for a ribbon cutting at 10:00 a.m.

Anyone who is interested in attending is welcome to join

Floeter said that longevity translates into consistency for the company. Even when business slows, it's crucial to have the right people in place because when it picks back up, "You are back and rolling again."

CHC Mechanical Contractors was founded in 1969 as American Heating Cooling & Supply. Floeter was hired as general manager in 1973. By 1988, Floeter became the principal owner of CHC. Today, CHC is an award-winning mechanical contractor that has been nationally recognized for its safety record, which includes accolades from the Association of General Contractors-Tennessee Chapter, Air Conditioning Contractors of America and Associated Builders & Contractors.

Floeter said the company continues to focus on customer service and retention of associates is a central part of that philosophy. He also said relationships between the customers and associates are vital to providing quality service.

The following awards were announced during the event:

Anniversaries: Donna Bowman (20 years), Mark Carwile (5 years), Brandon Davenport (5 years), Jerry Draper (5 years), Sherry Hamilton (30 years), Charlie Hawkins (5 years), Gary Henderson (25 years), Byron Jackson (5 years), Shawn Linder (10 years), Joe Simonds (5 years), Dennis Venegas (5 years), Jack Warren (10 years) and Carl Webster (5 years).

CHC Mechanical Contractors serves the Upper Cumberland, Middle Tennessee and the Southeast region. Located at 347 E. Stevens St. in Cookeville, the company can be contacted at 931-528-5514 or online at www.CHCcompanies.com.

Cookeville Regional Medical Center's Heather Birdwell Receives National Credentials

Heather Birdwell, RCIS

Heather Birdwell, a cardiovascular technologist in the Cardiac Catheterization Laboratory at Cookeville Regional Medical Center, has recently earned national credentials in her field from Cardiovascular Credentialing International (CCI) to become a registered cardiovascular invasive specialist. Birdwell underwent extensive preparation to prepare for this certification.

Cardiovascular invasive specialists monitor patients and prepare them for cardiac catheterization procedures. They also assist physicians with the cardiac catheterization procedures in which a small tube, or catheter, is guided through the patient's blood vessels into the heart. This procedure can determine if a blockage exists in the blood vessels of the heart and may also involve balloon angioplasty or stenting to treat blockages of the blood vessels.

Since 1994 The Heart and Vascular Center at Cookeville Regional has provided much needed cardiac and vascular services in the Upper Cumberland. Since its opening, the Center has grown and expanded to include not only comprehensive diagnostic tests and treatments but also interventional procedures such as angioplasty, stent placement, pacemakers, electrophysiology and arrhythmia procedures, implantable cardioverter defibrillator implantation and cardiothoracic surgery (including beating heart, minimally invasive heart surgeries as well as heart valve repair and replacement). Some of the most common vascular conditions treated are aortic aneurysm, carotid artery disease and peripheral artery disease. Boasting a well trained medical staff specializing in treating heart and vascular conditions, The Heart and Vascular Center at Cookeville Regional is staffed by board certified cardiologists, vascular surgeons, cardiothoracic surgeons, and cardiothoracic anesthesiologists, supported by a team of healthcare professionals who are specifically trained in the field of cardiac and vascular care.

The Heart and Vascular Center has recently been ranked the best performing hospital in Tennessee and among the top 10% of all hospitals nationwide for coronary interventional procedures from HealthGrades, the leading independent healthcare ratings organization.

CCI is a not-for-profit corporation established for the purpose of administering credentialing examinations as an independent credentialing agency. CCI began credentialing cardiovascular professionals in 1968. CCI is governed by a Board of Trustees composed of cardiovascular professionals including members from the American College of Cardiology (ACC), American College of Chest Physicians (ACCP), American Society of Echocardiography (ASE), British Society of Echocardiography (BSE), Society of Invasive Cardiovascular Professionals (SICP) and Society for Vascular Ultrasound (SVU).

Midstate Termite and Pest Control wins Sea Doo at National PestWorld Convention

The National Pest Management Association's PestWorld 2010 annual convention and exposition was recently held in Honolulu, Hawaii in October 2010. Over 3,500 attendees were at the event held at the Hawaii Convention Center. Those in attendance included 350 international delegates representing 55 countries from around the world.

It is the largest annual gathering in the world of pest management professionals, distributors, and suppliers. The convention included targeted information on the latest products, services, technologies and business applications with a special forum about bed bugs.

Randy Adcock of Midstate Termite and Pest Control in Cookeville, and his son, Ethan, were the winners at the convention of a "Wave of Success" Sea Doo presented by David James of Forshaw Distributors.

Teen Challenge Big Winner at Leslie Town Centre

Teen Challenge of the Upper Cumberland is the 2nd quarter winner of the Together We Care $500 award to assist with their annual fundraising banquet on Friday, April 8 at the Leslie Town Centre.

Teen Challenge of the Upper Cumberland is a faith-based non-profit organization that provides addiction recovery services to men and women in the Upper Cumberland area. Teen Challenge offers a short-term residential crisis program which provides women with safe, temporary housing, assistance with legal issues, and helps them transition into a long-term residential addiction treatment center. Residents actively participate in Bible studies and receive Christian guidance while living in a structured and supportive environment. Teen Challenge also provides non-residential assistance by placing men into long-term treatment centers and offers weekly addiction recovery classes to men, women and families.

This year's fundraising banquet, Stories of Transformation, will be open to the public at $10 per ticket. The event will be a dessert banquet that will feature a Teen Challenge choir performance intermingled with personal testimonies throughout the evening.

"Teen Challenge of the Upper Cumberland is thankful to be the recipient of the Leslie Town Centre's Together We Care gift. We are looking forward to an enjoyable evening of dessert and Stories of Transformation from Teen Challenge students," Pastor Tim McLauchlin, executive director, said.

For more information about Teen Challenge of the Upper Cumberland, visit www.teenchallengeuc.org or call 1-888-688-0470.

"We are honored by the trust of every Leslie Town Centre patron and understand the importance of their very special events," said Debi Smith, events director at the Leslie Town Centre. "Thankful for patron organizations like Teen Challenge of the Upper Cumberland, these events give us the opportunity to come alongside and help organizations with their missions. Our next drawing will take place in early April,

Tennessee Tech's 13th Annual Window On The World Festival on April 16

The 13th Annual Window On The World (WOW) festival will take place Saturday, April 16 from 10:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. In addition to the festival are two educational extensions offered free of charge to the community. The first is a Symposium titled "The Middle East Now." The second extension is the addition of workshops by the Global Education Center from Nashville for area educators.

The Symposium will take place on Friday, April 15 at the Roaden University Center from 10:10 a.m. to 11:00. It will consist of a panel of experts discussing current events in the Middle East. Dr. Mark Stephens, Associate VP for Academic Affairs, will open the Symposium. Stephens supervises the operations of the International Student Affairs.

Ferdinand DiFurio will be the moderator for the Symposium. DiFurio is an associate professor of economics at Tennessee Tech. He teaches classes at the undergraduate and graduate levels, and has published research in the areas of business survival and program evaluation.

Three panelists will present their individual perspectives on the Middle East. Panelists were chosen according to their varied experiences in the Middle East. These panelists include Pat Ryan, Michael Gunter, and Jeff Roberts.

Ryan is founder of the Tennessee World Affairs Council, a non-profit, non partisan educational charity whose mission is to bring global awareness education programs and resources to Tennessee communities and schools. He currently works as president and founder of Ryan & Associates, an editorial consulting firm specializing in online global affairs information resources, particularly developments in the Middle East and Asia.

Gunter is a professor of political science at TTU, and teaches during the summer at the International University in Vienna, Austria. He is the author of seven critically praised scholarly books on the Kurdish question. He is also co-editor with Mohammed M. A. Ahmed of "The Kurdish Question and the 2003 Iraqi War, 2005"; and "The Evolution of Kurdish Nationalism, 2007." He has been interviewed on numerous occasions by the international and national press on the Middle East.

Roberts, Chairman of the Department of History at TTU, routinely teaches courses on Middle Eastern History, and has recently taught seminars on terrorism and Afghanistan. He is the author of "The Origins of Conflict in Afghanistan." When asked about subjects he will discuss at the Symposium he comments, "Every time I teach the Middle East course, I make extensive changes to reflect current events. The pace of change in the past few months, however, has been truly spectacular. I'm hesitant to even suggest what topics I might address three weeks from now, save to say that I'll certainly mention Afghanistan."

The public is invited to attend, and participation in a Q & A session after the Symposium is encouraged.

The second educational extension is the addition of four workshops, presented throughout the day on April 16. The workshops are presented by Global Education Center, a nonprofit anti-bias, multicultural education center. They specialize in using the arts of diverse cultures to highlight commonalities of all people and to promote cross-cultural understanding and respect. Registered teachers will participate in a total of five hours of immersion in the arts of diverse cultures, including West Africa, India and Appalachia, as well as exploration of poetry and improvisational music. Professional Development credit is available for attendance.

The workshops are made possible through the support of the Tennessee Arts Commission, the National Endowment for the Arts, the Nissan Foundation and the Memorial Foundation. Register at globaleducationcenter@juno.com, at 615-292-3023, or with Melissa Creek, WOW coordinator, at mcreek@tntech.edu.

Middle Tennessee Business Goes Solar to Promote Energy Efficiency and Saving Money

With solar installations popping up throughout Tennessee, many businesses have seen the advantage of harnessing the power of the sun to help manage their utility costs. Any company trying to meet a bottom line can sympathize with trying to keep heating bills low, particularly during the cold winter months when energy usage can be at its highest.

But what's your motivation if you have a 28,000 square foot facility and your heating bill for the entire winter averages less than $95 a month?

That's not a typo. Freedom Plaza, the headquarters of Cookeville-based J & S Construction, averaged $94.76 per month in heating costs in 2008 to 2009, its first winter of operation. With a heating bill that low, it should come as no surprise that one of the primary areas of focus for J & S Construction is working with companies to produce projects that are truly energy efficient.

While touting energy-efficient construction is one thing, having the hardware to back it up is what makes J & S stand out. They are currently the only contractor in Tennessee to be awarded Leadership in Energy & Environmental Design (LEED) Platinum, LEED Gold, and LEED Silver certifications on buildings they have constructed. LEED is an internationally-recognized green building certification system.

"We really went solar for two reasons," said John Stites II, President of J & S. "Number one, frankly, was the availability of the grants from the Tennessee Solar Institute and the USDA. When we combine the Solar Installation Grant and the USDA grant with the tax credits and accelerated depreciation, our solar install will pay for itself in about two years. While we were going solar regardless, the grants did make the process much more attractive."

Stites continues, "Number two; we are a very green company to begin with. Part of our mission is to show people and our clients that being more energy efficient can also be cost effective, particularly over the long-term lifespan of a facility." He concedes that for more businesses to seriously consider installing solar, it has to be financially feasible.

Stites points out, however, that over the first 40 years of a building's lifespan, only 11% of the cost is in the initial construction, and only 14% is financing and interest. "While the front end is what a lot of businesses look at, they need to be aware that 75% of the cost of a building over that 40-year period is in maintenance and upkeep, including utilities. The amount of savings in the life cycle cost is equal to the total initial cost of the project. In effect, the owner of the facility would get 100% of his investment back by only saving 15%, which is not that difficult to accomplish. Smart building on the front end can save a lot of money over a building's useful life."

The 37.5 KW ground-mount system, comprised of 168 solar panels, is a sight to behold, stretching the entire length of the parking lot behind their facility. More than just an energy producer, it is also a model to use for marketing purposes.

"We purposely made our solar array a ground-mount unit, so our clients and prospective clients can see it," said Stites, "and it's a very strong visual of one more tangible way that J & S focuses on energy efficiency."

"We know that, at the end of the day, it doesn't matter how energy efficient a project is if it's not cost effective. But, it doesn't have to cost more to go green" said Stites.

He encourages businesses to look beyond just the short term when figuring out if solar is right for them. Also, Stites says, look to bottom-line results. "For example, only 32% of LEED points (towards receiving LEED certification) have anything to do with energy efficiency."

J & S boasts a list of completed projects across Tennessee and the southeastern United States that would make any construction company green with envy, from a $13 million project for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers at Fort Campbell to a project that included the installation of solar panels on the airport hangar of two A-list country music stars in nearby Nashville.

The reason for J & S Construction's success? At the end of the day, Stites says, it's all about customer satisfaction. He cites the company's stellar reputation, as shown by the fact that, since 1990, over 75% of their projects are with repeat customers and over 99% of J & S clients say they would refer J & S to others for construction projects. They take pride in producing high-quality, energy-efficient projects.

Need more proof? Just look at their heating bill.

Mastersingers Prepare for a Busy Spring of Music

Mastersingers have a very busy spring ahead of them. "We usually offer a spring concert, but this year, we'll be offering 3 all in the month of April," said Kristin Wells, Mastersingers Publicity Chair. "A wonderful collection of music was offered on Saturday, April 2 entitled Songs of Love and Romance."

Which will be followed by Bernstein's Chichester Psalms, a performance with the Bryan Symphony Orchestra on Sunday, April 17 at 3:00 p.m. and they will round out the month with a special production and reception, Just Desserts hosted by the Bobby Williams family on Saturday, April 30.

"We are very excited about all we have to offer this spring," said Dr. Craig Zamer, Music Director of Mastersingers, "Songs of Love and Romance will bring a wide variety of musical styles together and we always thoroughly enjoy singing with the BSO."

Tickets for their performance with the Bryan Symphony Orchestra are available through the Orchestra offices. The Just Desserts concert and reception will have a $10 admission with half price admission for Tech students with a Tech ID. Just Desserts will feature musical numbers along with a delicious variety of desserts donated by several local chefs and bakers.

For all information on Mastersingers, you can visit the web site at www.mastersingersinc.com. Mastersingers is a community chorus consisting of approximately 70 members of all ages from all around the Upper Cumberland. They have been bringing song to the Upper Cumberland region for over 30 years. Artists needed for Sgt. York Cultural Arts and Heritage Celebration, set for May 6 and 7, 2011

Sgt. York State Historic Park and the York General Store & Visitor center are planning the first annual Sgt. York Cultural Arts and Heritage Celebration, set for May 6 and 7. The event will run from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. both days. We are looking for local artists and period craftsmen to demonstrate skills, show, and/or sell items. We are in need of local artists/demonstrators for both Friday and Saturday. We are also looking for authors of books about historic subjects to be available for discussions and signings and to sell their books. On Friday we are showcasing for schools and we expect to have a good crowd of school children. On Saturday we will cater to the general public. There will be music on the grounds and food available for purchase at the General Store. In addition, there will be a WWI history display and the York Home and Mill will be open for tours.

There is NO fee for setting up and no commission will be charged on sales for the following: artists, craftsmen, authors.

If you wish to demonstrate your skills for educational purposes, please indicate on the vendor application. There is a small stipend available to help offset the cost of materials and/or travel for those who commit to demonstrations for educational purposes on Friday, May 6. There is a secure place to store materials overnight if you commit to both days of the festival.

York General Store & Visitor Center, yorkgeneralstore.blogspot.com, which is manned by paid staff from the Sgt. York Patriotic Foundation, is seeking to partner with artists and arts organizations to showcase and sell appropriate arts and crafts by regional artists both in the visitor center and online. This excludes "handicrafts."

Thank you for your interest! For more information please contact the Event Coordinator, Claudia Johnson at syfdirector@gmail.com or she may be reached by phone at 931-347-2664. Celebration of Spring at Edgar Evins State Park April 9

Children work on craft projects, among other activities, during the Celebration of Spring at Edgar Evins State Park on Center Hill Lake. This year's Celebration of Spring will be April 9 from 8 AM to 4 PM with activities continuing throughout the day.

All are invited to the FREE Celebration of Spring on April 9 at Edgar Evins State Park, on beautiful Center Hill Lake, Silver Point. The annual one day event for families and individuals is sponsored by the Friends of Edgar Evins Fount Bertram, a resident of Cannon County and the President of Friends of Edgar Evins State Park says "In this case it really may pay to be the early bird as some activities may have to be limited to a certain number of participants due to limited space, but there will be alternatives throughout the day." Registration and sign ups for all events, including the hikes, begin at the Visitors Center. The Friends website may be viewed at <http://foesp.ne1.net>.

State park and park employees.

Registration will start at the Visitors Center in time for the 8 a.m. nature walks. Activities will continue until about 4 p.m. Everyone is encouraged to bring a lunch and plan to stay for the day.

The Nature Walks will focus on wild flower, bird and butterfly identification by Mark Taylor, Park Ranger, Randy Hedgepath, State Naturalist, and Holly Taylor, Park Naturalist. In addition there will be a more strenuous 3 ½ mile hike at 10 a.m. led by members of Tennessee Trails Association. This family friendly hike will feature 6 prize eggs along the trail for the younger hikers to redeem for prizes after the hike.

There will be live on-stage entertainment most of the day, including Patricia Jackson, who is a Nashville Minnie Pearl impersonator and country music singer, the local Flat Broke Bluegrass Band, and at 11:30 a.m. tiny tots from the Cannon Arts Studio in Woodbury will dance the Maypole and invite participation in the Bunny Hop.

Other offerings will be pontoon boat rides for children over 3, accompanied by an adult, potato sack and 3-legged races, living history demonstrations, hands-on crafts workshops hosted by Smithville Girl Scout Troop 1146 led by Ronica Evans, and Holly Taylor's popular SSSSnakes! Show for the adventurous of all ages.

Prizes will be awarded inside the Visitors Center at 10 a.m. for the winners from Baxter and Carthage Elementary Schools 4th grade coloring contest. Their entries and those of all the other participants will be on display.

Jammin at Hippy Jack's Expanding, Attracting a National and International Audience

It's a new day for the Stoddart family, bi-annual hosts of the Jammin at Hippy Jack's music festivals in Overton County. The Jammin at Hippy Jack's festivals are now a program of the Council of Americana Roots Music; a non-profit organization for the preservation and presentation of original singer songwriters of Americana roots music. Their mission is to educate communities with live recordings and provide free access to their music performance programs to public television stations, libraries and school systems nationwide. Their public television music series Jammin at Hippy Jack's is currently broadcast to over 112 million folks nationwide almost 40% of the United States. A couple thousand people attend the annual music festivals on the Stoddart farm in beautiful Overton County.

With a nationally broadcast TV show and their two music festivals on the Plateau it is no wonder they attract people from as far away as London. It is a proven fact that bringing people into the area to attend such a positive, and family oriented music festival will help the local economy. This is an ever expanding rural development project that reaches into every surrounding community. Conservative studies indicate without doubt that music is our best bet. Help them in continuing to promote this region through broadcast communication and tourist development. Show your support for bringing tourism to our community. Multiple sponsor levels are available for the upcoming May 27-29 Festival. HIGHLANDS 8th Grade CAREER FAIR

Tuesday, May 10, 2011
9:00 a.m. – 2:30 p.m.
Hooper Eblen Center

The Highlands Workforce Development and Education Committee invites you to participate in the Highlands Career Fair Tuesday, May 10, 2010, at Hooper Eblen Center on the campus of Tennessee Technological University from 9:00 am until 2:30 pm. Approximately 1600 eighth grade students from Jackson, Overton, Putnam, and White counties will be attending.

The objective of the Highlands Career Fair is to motivate students at a younger age to become college and career-ready. The goal is to provide students the opportunity to interact with professionals from all occupations and to emphasize the importance of completing their education BEFORE high school begins. Students can begin to understand the relationship between educational level and greater future earnings. As graduation rates improve, the number of qualified workers in the workforce will increase to better support current and future employers.

During the Highlands Career Fair, students will be visiting booths to gather information. We suggest that you provide informational materials or samples of your products or services. In addition, videos and hands-on activities are very effective. Detailed information about the various types of jobs available in your profession as well as specific duties, pay scale, and training required are also interesting to the students.

Booths will be setup along the concourse. A table & two chairs will be provided per 8' X 6' booth. Special arrangements for electrical outlets can be made. Audio-visual equipment will not be furnished. There is no charge for your participation and lunch will be provided for representatives at the booths during the lunch hour. Doors open for set-up at 7:30 a.m. Set up should be completed by 8:30 that morning and tear-down immediately at the close of the event.

Please complete and return the registration form below by Monday, March 28, to reserve your booth space. Forms can be sent via fax to 931-526-4023 or email to lhartgrove@cookevillechamber.com. For questions call Lillian Hartgrove at 931-526-2211. Thank you for your participation and support.
